Project Story

Coopers Edge is a large development in Gloucestershire, built by a consortium of developers. Proludic worked closely with the project management company, WYG to deliver a high-quality LEAP for one of the Public Open Spaces areas within the development. We engaged with the Local Authority, Stroud District Council on behalf of our client to ensure that the plans were accepted under the planning agreement and would be easily adopted.

The development is on the old site of the renowned Brockworth airfield, which played a major part in the development and manufacture of aircraft between 1915 and the mid-1960s. This history was used to inspire elements of the play area with the runway and aircraft included in graphics within the wetpour. The finished site looks fantastic and is of a high specification, offering a brilliant asset to the growing community within Coopers Edge.

Proludic were a great help throughout the process, they worked closely with the Local Authority to ensure the plans were accepted and delivered a great project on time and in budget.
