Project Story: Following a competitive tender process, Rochford District Council appointed Proludic as the main contractor to supply and install play equipment at an existing Play Park, Rochford Recreation Ground, Rochford. The site is made up of a large playing field, a children's play area, and a sports pavilion. A statement from the council said the newly refurbished playground will be focussed on "creative play", which will encourage children to be more active in using their imagination, alongside their physical skills.

Rochford Recreation Ground is a key play site within the District and is viewed as a flagship site due to the large number of people that it serves in its catchment area. Families living nearby will benefit from a £55,400 funding boost, the majority of which was donated by charity.

“ The playground on Rochford Recreation Ground acts as a focus point for the local communities to meet, greet and play together. While the previous play space offered a range of traditional playground units, we have improved the dated design to include a Diabolo multiplay unit as well as a variety of swings to maintain an aspect of traditional play equipment throughout the newly improved playground. ”

The new play area was designed with toddlers and juniors in mind and included two new Multiplay Units ensuring the new equipment caters to the early teens in terms of users. Both units were from Pro-ludic's popular Diabolo range (J38108 and J3851). Swings are popular on any scheme and this one was no different with five different types catering to all ages and abilities. An inclusive pod swing (J441) was included along with cradle seats, a swing seat tango and a braided rope seat. The vibrantly coloured play space was further brought to life with vivid themed graphics on the playing surface.
