Project Story

Navnat is charitable organisation that represents the Indian community in Hayes. Their desire to attract more families and children to the centre has been achieved through the installation of a new playground. While families visit the centre, the play area gives young children a 'sense of home' and helps them to embrace family culture making this a special project for Proludic. The play area is educational as well as fun with the illustration of the Gujarati alphabet displayed in the tarmac.

At Proludic inclusion is a key aspect of our philosophy because we believe that all children should have access to play. We want to help children play together in a friendly environment to prevent isolation and allow all children to develop at their own pace and within their capabilities.
