Project Story: L + Q Estates, a well-established housebuilder, planned a development that included a Local Equipped Area for Play (LEAP) at Tiltyard, Warwick. The project initially incorporated a variety of suppliers and equipment, all of which had been approved by the local authority. The key challenge was to streamline the supply process while ensuring all items met the authority's standards without compromising play value or quality.

Proludic leveraged its extensive portfolio and strong relationship with the local authority to provide a unified play solution. By consolidating the equipment under a single manufacturer, we ensured that all elements met planning requirements while delivering an engaging and high-quality play experience.

We're thrilled to see the new Tiltyard LEAP playground in Warwick come to life, creating a vibrant and inclusive space for children and families. It's fantastic to see the community enjoying this wonderful new play area, and we're proud to have been part of the project!

The site, located in Warwick, is part of a residential development designed to cater to families with young children. Given the historic context of Warwick, the play area was themed around a medieval castle to reflect the local heritage and enhance engagement for children.

Proludic supplied like-for-like equipment based on the planning drawings, incorporating a diverse range of play elements that aligned with the original design. Our approach ensured consistency, quality, and adherence to local authority standards. The chosen equipment was designed to be robust, age-appropriate, and rich in play value. The mix of climbing, imaginative, and interactive elements provided an inclusive and stimulating environment for children of all abilities.

One of the primary challenges was ensuring that all play equipment met the local authority's approval. Proludic worked closely with planners to demonstrate that our solutions maintained the original play value and met quality expectations. By offering high-quality like-for-like replacements, we achieved compliance while maintaining the integrity of the play space.

Tiltyard LEAP in Warwick stands as a shining example to Proludic's ability to deliver high-quality play solutions that balance regulatory compliance with creative and engaging play opportunities. By working closely with both L + Q Estates and the local authority, we successfully created a play area that enriches the community and provides lasting value for families.
