Project Story: Tower Hamlets Council sought proposals from experienced play specialists who could deliver a small imaginative, creative, and inclusive playground in Whitehorse Road Open Space. They required at least 50% of the play equipment to be suitable for use by children with special needs and disabilities.

Situated in the heart of London, the Whitehorse Open space is surrounded by residential accommodation, and as a result, the new play area needed to accommodate a high number of parents and carers with their toddlers all year round.

Proludic's exciting new Adventure Whitehorse toddler play area has been designed to ignite the imagination and provide opportunities for progression of children from six months up to eight years of age. Users can explore this area for years to come before progressing to the existing Adventure Play Area located nearby.

Utilising the budget provided we have installed 11 individual play items, catering for 34 users at one time, offering over 30 play experiences. We have designed the play area to be eye-catching, offering the 'WOW' factor, stimulating the users through the colours and recognisable shapes found on the equipment.

« We felt it is important that the play space is themed, creative and unique to the area. For this reason, we have designed the play area with a jungle theme, including a Safari Multiplay Unit for the central focal point. Other items complimenting this theme are our Jungle Jeep and Leo the Lion Springer. »
